PREFACE.

ENCOURAGED by our duty to the proprietor, the Honorable C. G. Huber, of Vienna, Imperial Court Counsellor, Consul-General for Austria, in Egypt, during twenty-five years (whose zeal for Numismatics has been evinced in the Levant and elsewhere for much more than a quarter of a century by his liberal purchases), and sanctioned by numerous precedents, we venture with due deference to the learned, and with proper diffidence in our own capabilities, on a few prefatory observations relating to the important and valuable Collection of Ancient Coins, by us succinctly but carefully catalogued, now about to be disposed of by Messrs. Sotheby and Wilkinson. We think ourselves justified in stating, that this Cabinet exceeds as to rarity and beauty of the specimens, as well as the great quantity of unpublished Coins, any that we have had the honor to catalogue of late years. It is, of course, almost superfluous to state, that there are no false Coins in this Cabinet. Of this Collection the chief gems (the purchase of which will no doubt be keenly contested), we shall now proceed to point out. The more remarkable are the following:—lots 84 and 85, Camarina, didrachms of especial beauty and interest, with reverse-type a Camaranæan nymph on a swan swimming; the illustrious city of Syracuse worthily represented by lot 119, a tetradrachm with a very beautiful head, almost full-faced, of the fountain-nymph Arethusa; Lycæius of Paeonia (lot 194), very rare and valuable, though somewhat barbarous; Chalcis (207), an unpublished tetradrachm of high excellence; Mende (213), a scarce tetradrachm (types as engraved on the plate which accompanies this catalogue), wanting in most of the richest collections; Amyntas II, of Macedon (227, v. plate), an interesting addition to any cabinet, very similar to the valuable specimen in the British Museum; numerous fine medals in gold and silver of Lysimachus, Philip II, Alexander the Great, Philip III, &c., in the examination of which, the works of our respected friend, Professor Müller, of Copenhagen, will be found of great service, as he describes most accurately about 3000 varieties; lot 302, a most splendid Aureus, type of Alexander the Great, attributed to the Asiatic King Antigonus; Didrachms (328-329), of the Illyrian Prince Monunius, mentioned by Livy and Athenæus, who reigned about 180 B.C.; Athens (378), a fine gold stater or didrachm. Consideration is due also to the silver medals, chiefly tetradrachms (of the great Athenian currency), of the primitive rude archaic types, retained for commercial reasons, first minted probably 500 B.C. and 600 B.C., v. Beulé and others. Cius, unique gold didrachm (lot 492 and plate); in our opinion, there is nothing in either antient or modern workmanship which can surpass the beauty of the obverse of this unpublished Aureus, of which it is presumed no similar specimen exists in any Cabinet, so that another opportunity of possessing so important an example may never again present itself, an observation which justly applies also to most of the medals engraved on the plate which accompanies this catalogue. What we have stated about "unpublished coins," must occasionally be regarded with the necessary indulgence, should we accidentally have fallen into an unintentional error, and we shall be grateful for correction, leaving as we do the whole matter to superior judgment and acquaintance with numismatography; although we think that many amongst these coins may justly be termed "unique."

Lot 667, Kolbasa (vide plate), mentioned by Strabo, &c. (vide also Pape's Dictionary, Berlin edition), seems quite new and unknown to the numismatist. Mæonia (709, vide plate), a pleasing medal. Antiochus II, lot 767, tetradrachm, rev. with Hercules, of Attic standard, as is also the lot 791, Antiochus VI, rev. with Castor and Pollux on horseback, both valuable Syriac medals; and the very rare tetradrachm of Antiochus VIII, lot 802 (vide plate), adjusted to the Ptolemaic standard.

Lot 859, a scarce and finely preserved half shekel of Simon the Maccabee (v. "Werlhoff," "R. S. Poole," and "Voguë's" writings, valuable additions to Jewish numismatics).

Lot 880, a highly interesting Imperial copper piece of the famous Nineveh as a Roman colony. The numerous valuable Persian Satraps, Sassanian and Bactrian coins in silver, are all highly interesting, many in each of the respective series being unpublished. Amongst the medals of Africa, 942 (vide plate) and 943, two fine tetradrachms (with elephant's skin, &c.) of Attic standard, minted by the first Ptolemy in memory of Alexander the Great; most important coins, as is lot 995, Arsinoë I, Queen of Ptolemy Philadelphus (v. plate), inedited tetradrachm (found with 942, 943, &c.) adjusted to the Ptolemaic or Alexandrian talent ( $218\frac{6}{10}$  grs.), of nearly full weight, which should be 220 grs. troy. We have described in this rich series various coins of gold, and have assigned many of the silver and copper, heretofore considered rather uncertain and unsatisfactorily classed, with diffidence, but plausibly, we hope, to some of the later Ptolemies. There can be no doubt that the whole of this instructive series requires much careful examination, correction and revision to arrive at an accurate classification;—vide a valuable note by the regretted Colonel Leake at page 59 of his most useful “Numismata Hellenica” (Kings of Egypt). Up to the present time little positively good has been written about the Ptolemaic medals, especially in this Country. To some there may be much ambiguity in the dates and arrangement of many of the present coins of the Ptolemaic dynasty; yet, by very striking arguments, too long to be reproduced here, the Proprietor seems well supported in his attributions, especially if we take into consideration his long-continued Egyptological researches and claims to local knowledge.

The Imperial series of Alexandria in this Collection is very rich and very fine, presenting great interest in its varied types, which deserve far more study than they have as yet received. The most noticeable medals of this remarkable class, are some of those of Nero, Octavia, Trajan, Sabina, Antoninus Pius (two rare and fine varieties with AIWN. and crane or phoenix), Verus, Domna, Paula, Annia Faustina (4), Soæmias, Mamaea, rev. Alexander Severus (2), Tranquillina (13), Hostilian, Aemilian, Macrianus junior, Quietus, and last not least, the illustrious and learned Palmyrene Queen Zenobia.

All of the Nomes or Districts of Egypt are fine or highly interesting; amongst the latter we would particularly mention Boubastis, Ombites, Pelusium, Prosopites, Thinites, and numerous others. Of Cyrene, Zeugitania, Mauritania and Numidia, there are also various interesting coins.

It seems superfluous to add, that some of the Roman series which conclude the sale, have much merit, such as the denarius of Crepereia (1298), and the gold coins of Lucilla, Crispina, possessing much of the finish and elegance of the Augustan times; Septimius Severus, Constantius Chlorus (1316-1318 and 1324); Justinus and Justinian I (1344, an unpublished solidus), and also 1360, Theodora.

In conclusion, I will only observe, that in compiling the Catalogue and pointing out the various rarities, I have endeavoured to give satisfaction, my earnest hope being that to obtain some of the aforementioned perfect specimens at fair prices, may justly be held amongst life's “summa bona.” “Qui fecit quod potuit, implevit legem.” Solely in deference to the kind wish of numerous distinguished friends here and abroad, I now respectfully subscribe these prefatory remarks,

JOSEPH CURT,

33, Great Portland Street, Regent Street.

ALEXANDRIA OF EGYPT.

ROMAN IMPERIAL.

A most rich and interesting Series; bad in general as works of art, but most instructive from their having, besides dates, countless variety of subjects on the reverse, some historical, and more mythological. The types of these coins afford the best and cheapest means of studying the Roman-Egyptian Pantheon.
